

Before Installing AppleShare Server 3.0

Before installing AppleShare Server 3.0 on your Macintosh computer, you need to update some essential networking software. This software—specifically, a new version of AppleTalk—is provided on the Network Software Installer disk. The new AppleTalk software needs to be installed on the server computer only; it does not need to be installed on individual workstations. Use the instructions that follow to install the new AppleTalk software before installing AppleShare Server 3.0.

△ Important You must install the new version of AppleTalk. AppleShare Server 3.0 is incompatible with some older versions of AppleTalk. △

Installing the new AppleTalk software

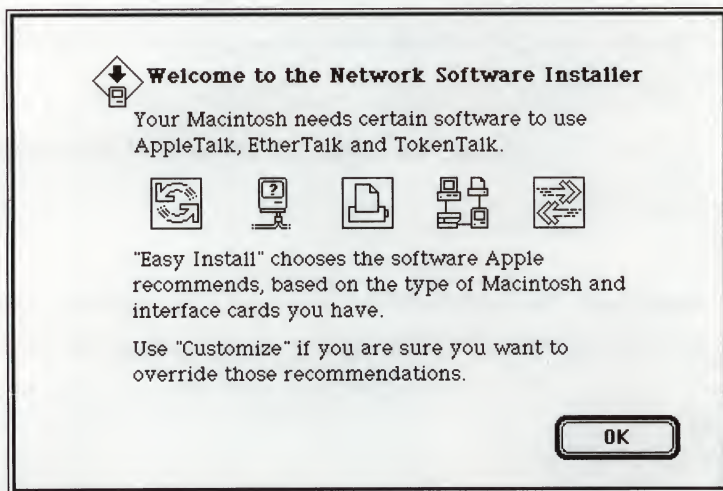

Follow these steps to install the new version of AppleTalk software:

- 1 Insert the Network Software Installer disk into your floppy disk drive.
- 2 Double-click the Installer icon to open it.

Installer

The following dialog box appears:

3 Click OK.

The Easy Install dialog box appears:

If the hard disk listed in the Easy Install dialog box is not the disk you want to install AppleShare Server 3.0 on, click the Switch Disk button until the correct name appears.

Depending on the type of Macintosh computer you are using, you may see more than one item listed in the Easy Install dialog box. If so, the additional networking software listed there should also be installed on your computer to ensure you are using the most up-to-date versions.

4 Click Install.

If you are running other applications, you see a dialog box indicating that installation is not possible while other applications are running. Click Continue to quit the other applications and to continue with the installation.

The latest version of AppleTalk software is installed on your hard disk. However, your changes won't take effect until you restart the computer.

5 Click Restart.

After you've installed the AppleTalk software, use the AppleShare Server 3.0 Administrator's QuickStart or the AppleShare Server 3.0 Administrator's Guide to continue the installation process.